Seasonal or Pandemic Flu?

Seasonal flu season starts around October each year and lasts until the following May. According to the website www.flu.gov, seasonal flu affects around 5% - 20% of the people in the US each year. A Pandemic flu occurs when the virus mutates and a new influenza A virus emerges and people have little or no immunity against it. In a Pandemic flu, it spreads very rapidly throughout the population. One such pandemic flu was in 1999 - 2000 when the H1N1 (swine flu) occurred worldwide. No one can predict when the next pandemic flu will occur. The best way to prevent getting any flu and thus lower the risk of a pandemic flu occurring is by prevention and limiting the spreading of it to others. You can use several simple steps to lower your chance of getting the flu and if you do get it, prevent passing it on to others. Take everyday precautions, like washing your hands with soap and water or using an alcohol-based sanitizer frequently, especially after coming into contact with someone with the flu or using a public facility. Also, avoid touching your eyes, nose, or mouth, avoid close contact with sick people, get plenty of sleep and exercise, manage your stress, drink plenty of fluids and eat healthy food. If you are sick, be sure to cover your nose and mouth with a tissue when you cough or sneeze or better yet, cough in your sleeve. Throw the tissue in the trash after you use it and wash your hands. If you are sick with flu-like illness, stay home for at least 24 hours after your fever is gone without the use of fever-reducing medicine. If you are exposed to, or caring for someone with the flu, talk to your doctor about preventative antiviral medications. These medicines are 70% to 90% effective at preventing the flu.

Take Time for a Flu Shot

The CDC (Center for Disease Control) recommends a yearly flu vaccine for everyone 6 months of age and older as the first and most important step in protecting against this serious disease. How serious the flu season will be this year and which flu strains will become a problem is anyone's guess as flu viruses can change from year to year. The common flu symptoms are high fever, headache, extreme tiredness, cough, sore throat, runny or stuffy nose, body aches, diarrhea and vomiting (more common among children than adults). Having one or more of these symptoms does not necessarily mean you have the flu. Other illnesses, including the common cold, can cause most of these symptoms also. If any of the symptoms are severe it is recommended that you see your doctor, especially if you have a high risk for complications which include people 65 years or older, people with chronic medical conditions (such as asthma, diabetes or heart disease), pregnant women and young children.

Halloween Safety

On October 31 children will take to the streets again for house-to-house Trick-or-Treating. As they are gathering candy and other goodies, they are not always as careful as they could be. We encourage everyone to drive extra cautiously on that evening. Parents should outfit their trick-or-treaters with flashlights, glow sticks or safety flashers on their clothing. Embellish dark costumes with reflective tape. It comes in many colors. Parents, buy costumes made of flame retardant material, as candles in porch pumpkins will pose a hazard to kids crowding a door for candy and not paying careful attention.

Upcoming Public Sessions:

FREE! Earthquake Preparedness and Home Safety. The class is one hour and is scheduled by request for Cupertino businesses, churches, or social groups of 8 or more. This class can come to you! Contact the Cupertino Office of Emergency Services (OES) at 408.777.3335, or email OES@cupertino.org for more information, to request a class for your company, group or organization.

Community Emergency Response Team (CERT) Training Schedule. This is the perfect time to learn to be part of the disaster response solution. This is an intensive training session by the Santa Clara County Fire Department on preparedness and helping others during a disaster. You must be able to attend all classes for graduation. All classes will be held in Los Gatos. Class schedule is November 5 - 7 and November 12 - 14, 6 - 9 pm, November 16, 10 am - 1 pm, for the final exercise. The registration fee is $35 which will be reimbursed to Cupertino residents upon successful completion of the course. If you have questions or want to register contact: info@sccfd.net or 408.341.4410.

If you do only 1 thing to prepare this month:

Stock up on basic cold and flu supplies for winter, that way you won't have to go out and infect others.

Simply Safe is a monthly article to inform the community about emergency preparedness, training schedules and volunteer opportunities.

roots | A Trip to the Stateline

by Gail Fretwell-Hugger

Recently a trip to southern Oregon provided some historic highlights along the way. I also got an education in "midges." As my car rolled down the Stateline Road dividing California and Oregon, we encountered tiny green flying "things." Sister Shelley proved to be a fount of "midge" information. Midge larvae hatch by the multi-millions in the Klamath River Basin during the summer months. Shortly, they change into clouds of flying insects that congregate around light sources at night and slime over windshields, necessitating much cleaning, so driving can proceed in the daytime. Yuck. Midges have no mouths - they live only 24-36 hours just long enough to propagate more millions of midges. Why God made so many of them I have no idea... they must serve some useful purpose that escapes me... but cooler weather kills them off (until the next year). Thankfully we didn't encounter a lot of them until we got into Klamath Falls near the river.

But I digress. On local history. Stateline Road passes the entrance to the Lava Beds National Monument - highly recommend a visit to that area. Caves abound and it is the site of the last Native American "war" in California with the U.S. Army. Captain Jack's Stronghold is a maze of jagged lava boulders, caves and hiding places - it now has a well-defined trail with historic markers. There are several ice caves that provided water for the desperate natives as they hid for months in the rocks.

Further down the road that divides California and Oregon is the small town of Tulelake. It was a thriving farm town in the early to middle 1900's but has declined a bit in today's high tech era. However, it has a good fairgrounds complex for the valley rodeo held every year and inside the fairgrounds office building is one of the best small town museums I've ever seen. We spent at least a couple of hours perusing the many historic exhibits that ranged from the Native American period to the early settlers who built farms and ranches with cowboys riding the range and the founders of the towns of Merrill, Malin and Tulelake. There is a tribute wall filled with pictures of all the valley men who served in the various branches of the military - a few were actually Civil War veterans.

There is an area of the museum devoted to the CCC (Civilian Conservation Corps) camp that operated nearby from 1935 to 1942. This big camp was part of the "New Deal" program during the Great Depression, putting young men between the ages of 18 - 25 to work and helping them learn new skills that would enable them to find employment at the end of their enlistment. The CCC is a good example of inter-governmental cooperation. The U.S. Army maintained discipline in the camps, while the men did a variety of work for agencies including the National Park Service, Fish and Wildlife and the Bureau of Reclamation. The Spanish California missions were all rebuilt by CCC workers.

The men in the camps received all meals and medical care at no extra cost. Much of the fresh meat and produce were purchased locally which helped the farmers and ranchers in the area.

The men were paid $1 a day. They received $5 a month for personal spending money and the remaining $25 went to help support their families. If they had no family, they were required to place the $25 in a savings account to help support them after they left the CCC.

The entrance of the U.S. into WWII saw the number of enrollees to CCC dwindle as young men went into the armed services. By mid 1942 the camps closed. Sadly, soon after the closures, Executive Order 9066 was enacted and "relocation" centers were built in the western U.S. to house thousands of Japanese residents - most of them U.S. citizens. One of these centers was built at Newell, near Tulelake. The national monument plaque on the highway states in part, "Tulelake was one of ten concentration camps established during WWII to house persons of Japanese ancestry, of whom the majority were U.S. citizens..." These camps remain a blot on U.S. history to this day.

The excellent museum in Tulelake, the lava beds, the ice caves and other history of the surrounding area is well worth a trip. The history of water use by farmers, ranchers, Native Americans, sports fishing enthusiasts, environmentalists and conservationists and business interests is a historic and ongoing saga. Water "wars" are not uncommon. The California side of the Stateline Road is miles of migrating bird sanctuary. Most days, the looming presence of Mt. Shasta is visible from one side of the valley to the other. Very picturesque. (Just watch out for midges).

City of Cupertino Names Second Poet Laureate

Jennifer Swanton Brown to Enrich Cultural Interaction of Community

City Council of Cupertino unanimously approved the recommendation of the Cupertino Library Commission naming Jennifer Swanton Brown as the second Poet Laureate of Cupertino. Her term will be from October 1, 2013 - September 30, 2015, a two year period. David Denny, the City's first Poet Laureate fulfilled a "very successful" first term, engaging all ages of the community in poetry.

Brown "has many ideas about increasing poetry knowledge, enjoyment and participation in Cupertino." The experience of writing and publishing poems as a school girl "was transformative, and something I believe I can offer the children of our community." She will also focus on international styles of poetry. "A community as diverse as Cupertino should celebrate the ancient and varied poetic traditions of its citizens' literature and cultures," notes Brown.

"I am delighted to be chosen to promote poetry in my home town" said Brown, an educator, writer, and long-time teacher of California Poets in the Schools. "Cupertino has given this community a powerful opportunity to explore together, young and old, the values of imagination and creativity. My favorite inspirational quote is attributed to Picasso, but it applies to poets and all creative experience: 'Inspiration does exist, but it must find you working.' Becoming the second Cupertino Poet Laureate will give me a chance to work with so many and hopefully to inspire some!"

Members of the Poet Laureate selection committee were: Adrian Kolb, chair, member of the Cupertino Library Commission; Roz Davis and Beverly Lenihan, Board members of the Cupertino Library Foundation; Kathy Stakey, longtime member of the Friends of the Cupertino Library; Deborah Vanni, English teacher, Homestead High School; Thomas Ray, dean of language arts at DeAnza College; and preceding Cupertino Poet Laureate, David Denny.

In December 2010, the City Council of Cupertino unanimously adopted a resolution put forth by the Library Commission establishing the office of the Cupertino Poet Laureate. During the two years that the Cupertino Poet Laureate presides there are personal presentations and hosted educational events. The Laureate will introduce adults and youth to the benefits of personal and community expression which, among other qualities, highlight the benefits of living and working in Cupertino. Questions and comments may be emailed to Poetlaureate@cupertino.org.

Volunteers for World Water Monitoring Day

Come learn more about the watershed in which you live, how watersheds work, and what you can do to protect important creek habitat.

Who: This is a great activity for young families, students looking for volunteer hours, and community members who are just plain curious about their local creek. Volunteers of all ages are welcome; minors under 18 require a signed waiver and those under high school age require an accompanying adult unless prior approval is obtained. Preregistration and signed waiver are available at <http://cupertinowater.eventbrite.com>. Groups larger than four should contact joannem@acterra.org to register.

What: Volunteers are invited to come help us determine the quality of water in Stevens Creek with monitoring activities which are easy and fun to carry out. Even the youngest volunteers will enjoy performing tests with our color-changing indicator kits. Participants will also have the opportunity to do a bit of bio-monitoring by looking at which aquatic bugs live in this part of the creek - finding too many pollution tolerant bugs could mean a pollution problem. Monitoring results will be shared with communities around the world which are holding their own World Water Monitoring Challenge events.

When: Saturday, October 12, 10 am to 12 noon.

Where: Blackberry Farm, 21979 San Fernando Ave, Cupertino (past the windmill). Park in the main lot, walk in by the windmill, and then follow the trail off to the left.

Bring: Volunteers under the age of 18 must bring a signed waiver. Please wear comfy shoes and bring a refillable water bottle.

Report Illegal Dumping and Discharges In or Near Storm Drains

Nothing besides rain water may be allowed to flow into a storm drain. Common examples of illegal discharges include mud, silt, litter, pool water, grease, oil, landscaping material, sand, wash water, automotive fluids, paint, and food wastes.

When do you report an illegal discharge or dumping incident?

- When you see a person dumping anything into the storm drain. This activity is illegal!
- When you notice unusual odors in or near the storm drain.
- When you see waste materials in or near the storm drain.
- When the storm drain system has larger than normal flows during dry periods.
- To report an illegal discharge or dumping incident that occurred in Cupertino, contact the City of Cupertino at the following phone numbers:

Monday - Friday, 7:30 - 5:30 pm, 408.777.3354
or Monday - Friday, 6 - 3 pm, 408.777.3269

After Hours - 408.299.2507
(Santa Clara County Communications will notify the City's on-call staff).

Flood Preparation

As this year's rainy season begins, residents should check to be sure that they're prepared for the possibility of flooding in their neighborhoods. Be aware that standard homeowner's insurance policies do not cover losses caused by floods or mudslides. Property owners can protect against potential flood damage by purchasing flood insurance and by preparing a family disaster plan. According to the Santa Clara Valley Water District, some areas in Cupertino along Calabazas Creek are considered at risk for flooding; property near Stevens Creek is also at risk, but to a lesser degree.

The city provides the following services to help residents prepare for potential flooding:

1. Residents can find out if their property is in a flood zone by visiting the Cupertino Public Works Department (call 408.777.3354 for details). The Public Works Department also offers elevation certificates for new buildings constructed in the floodplain.
 2. The City's Building Department has a booklet called "What You Should Know Before You Hire a Contractor". Booklets are available at the downstairs counter at City Hall, or you can download the pamphlet at www.cslb.ca.gov/Resources/GuidesAndPamphlets/WYSKPamphlet.pdf.
 3. Other information on flood preparedness is available on the Cupertino website at www.cupertino.org/emergency.
 4. Additional flood protection information and assistance can be obtained on the FEMA website at www.fema.gov.
 5. The Cupertino Library also holds publications for flood preparedness.
- The city's storm drainage system is composed of street gutters, the storm drain sewer inlets (at street corners), and the pipes that connect the inlets to local creeks. This system drains street runoff into the creeks and channels on the valley floor.
 - Residents can assist the city and help protect their immediate neighborhood from localized flooding by sweeping gutters regularly, placing swept material in the garbage, and checking that nearby storm drain grates are not covered with leaves or litter. Residents should abide by street sweeping/no parking signs to allow the city to keep the gutters clean and the storm drain system flowing. The city routinely sweeps the gutters in residential areas twice a month and in commercial areas once a week.
 - In the fall, before the rains start, a city contractor vacuums out city storm drain inlets, and checks for any evidence of hazardous materials in the drains. This cleaning prevents any illegally dumped materials that may be sitting in the inlets from washing into our creeks with the first rains.
 - It is illegal to dump anything into a creek or a storm drain. Residents can report dumping incidents to the City by calling 408.777.3269 during business hours and 911 after hours and on weekends.
